ERUCH: Allah Hu, Allah Hu, Allah Hu, Allah. The car is being driven fast you know. But see how it was when Baba heard this. Said, "Stop the car." So we stopped it on the roadside because highway. So I stopped it on the roadside. And then we all got down. Locked the car. And then we went out in the direction of this voice that was coming out. And we are passing through forest area. And some distance say about two furlongs from the road inside we found that the noise was coming louder and louder. And sure enough there was a huge shrine hidden inside the thicket. And there what a wonderful sight it was in the early hours of morning.

In unison about 5 or 6 Mohammedans were all standing there around that. You know it's a huge dome shaped thing. Usually these Mohammedans have that. And the echo we could hear you see because of the echoing that we could hear it so loudly. And they were all absorbed and lost in this just one syllable repetition, "Allah Hu, Allah Hu, Allah Hu, Allah Hu." And Baba and we entered. And they were lost in Allah Hu and Allah Himself was standing there. They didn't know [general laughter].

We waited there. We stopped there for about 5 minutes. Then Baba turned quietly and we left the place. Baba said, "How fortunate they are."

So maybe while you sing this and sometimes He might come and we may not know that He has come. Physically. He is here of course [crosstalk]. Not in physical in Nirakar roop. Huh?

PILGRIM 1: Did He ever have you sing those two? [inaudible].

ERUCH: Oh yes, oh yes. Early years.

PILGRIM 1: In the early years.

ERUCH: I remember in my teens.

PILGRIM 1: The women especially sang it didn't they?

ERUCH: We also used to sing. My mother used to make us sing that. When I used to.

PILGRIM 1: Were they both given at the same time?

ERUCH: But they came. They came at the same time to us. [inaudible] we used to sing that. At that time we used to play harmonium over here. On harmonium we used to sing that.

PILGRIM 1: You should sing one of the ones that you played. At least.

ERUCH: At least.
